Parking Problem Needs Solution to Keep Town's Economy Healthy

The Princeton Community is healthy and growing: parking meter receipts are up 49% and the borough collected $140,300 in parking fines.

TOWN TOPICS' annual examination of the year just ended shows pluses—like fence posts, all along the road into the new year 1973. (See box, page 2.)

But two Princeton businessmen, experts in different fields, warn about the severity of the parking problem in the community's Central Business District and the need for solution if the CBD is to remain healthy.

"Parking didn't come one whit closer to solution this year than last—cost is still the factor," says Nicholas L. Carnevale, outgoing president of the Chamber of Commerce and executive vice-president of the Walter B. Howe real estate agency.

"The parking requirements in the zoning ordinance must be changed," says William R. Cosby, chairman of the board of Princeton Bank and Trust, "this is an absolute initial step and until it's done anything else is a pipe dream."

But Mr. Cosby adds a cheerful note. "For the first time in five years," he says, "I have a feeling of optimism about solving the parking and zoning problem."

Both men are enthusiastic about the recently released Agle report on the CBD. Mr. Carnevale even calls it the "most dramatic" thing that's hit town in some time.

It will happen, or something like it, he predicts. The Chamber is behind it, and a lot of people are pushing for it.

Mr. Cosby observes that the Agle report may sound "way out," but he adds, you must make a start, and if this report can focus on the fact that a problem exists, we can begin to work on it.

Charles Agle prepared the report, "A New Life for the Center of Princeton" for the Princeton Regional Planning Board. In it he proposes to wipe out on-street parking, build six parking garages and relieve property owners from the present zoning requirement to provide off-street parking. He would also make Witherspoon Street and Palmer Square into pedestrian malls. (See TOWN TOPICS, Dec. 7, 1972).

Another restriction on CBD growth, besides parking, is height, Mr. Carnevale believes.

"We need upward revision of zoning restriction on heights," he says. No, Princeton isn't over-built for office space "although we were, 18-21 months ago."

Businesses have been flowing outward from the center of town, chiefly to places like Princeton Research Park on Route 206 opposite the airport. The Park, he points out, has plenty of parking space.

Incidentally, speaking of the airport—Mr. Carnevale revealed that negotiations are under way to bring an air-taxi service back to town. Princeton has been without an air-taxi for about two years, and many businessmen regard this as a serious lack. "Air taxi service attracts business here, and lack of it has been a slowing factor," Mr. Carnevale said.

Mr. Cosby takes a slightly different view of the center of town. He sees the CBD chiefly—and

Pre-K and Wednesday Programs Get School Board Approval

A chosen group of four-year-olds will continue, for one more year anyway, to attend pre-kindergarten; everybody has got to pay another penny for milk; the Wednesday Program will be continued, this time for two years instead of one, and an Advisory Council on Human Relations will indeed get under way but first, Princeton-style, an appointed committee has to work on it.

Tuesday was the last public meeting of the present school board, Superintendent Philip E. McPherson read farewell words of praise for the three board members whose last meeting it was: Robert Bierman, board president; Evelyn Geddes and Henry Powsner. All three decided not to run again.

For Fours. The pre-K program consists of two classes for four-year-olds who have needs or problems of one kind and another. Dr. McPherson wants the program discontinued.

It can't reach all the four-year-olds who need it, and more fundamentally the superintendent believes, its philosophy of helping those with frailties should be extended to all children in the school system, not merely a selected few.

The board heard teacher and parent comment last month. Tuesday, board members voted 7-1 to keep the pre-K program for another year. Evelyn Geddes voted "No," and George Fitzgerald was absent.

Mrs. Geddes argued that other community agencies might be able to deal with children eligible for the pre-K program. She warned that extending the program one more year wouldn't help in reaching other children with difficulties.

Dr. Bierman, who explained that as a pediatrician, he sees many very young children who could be helped by pre-K, said he regarded the program as a "foothold" toward programs that would help the entire birth-to-five population.

"If we stop pre-K," he said, "we may stop our thinking about these programs. But schools must realize they can't be all things to all families, and this program doesn't help the child with true personality disorders or learning disabilities."

"Why say if everybody can't, nobody can," asked Dr. Powsner. He was persuaded by the argument that pre-K can't be offered as widely

Kopp Postponed

Edward C. Kopp's use-variance hearing before Township Committee has been postponed.

The Township Zoning Board has recommended that Mr. Kopp be granted a use variance to build 33 apartments on Terhune Road, and Committee has final say on that recommendation. The Kopp case was on Committee's agenda for Monday night.

However, Committee already has before it the lengthy case of a use variance for public housing. Mr. Kopp thinks it's in the best interests of everyone if Committee is free to consider both cases independently.

He also said he will submit his plans for site-plan review before coming to Committee. At last week's public housing hearing, Committee members said they wished the Housing Authority had already cleared site-plan so that Committee would be the final decision-maker.

If site-plan appearances go according to schedule, Mr. Kopp will probably be before Committee in late March or early April.

as everyone would like, but he was more persuaded by the possibility that the program "may catch some early emotional and cultural deprivation, and thereby help in some way."

Dr. McPherson protested that he hadn't had a chance to discuss the program fully with the board. But he presented a detailed memo with a variety of alternatives. Chiefly he asked that some concerns behind pre-K be used as a basis for efforts to improve the whole regular school program.

"Wednesday" The Wednesday Program, that grand daddy of all school controversies, weathered another annual vote, but the 5-3 approval gives "Wednesday" a two-year breathing space this time, with evaluation scheduled for December, 1974.

"No" votes came, as they usually do for "Wednesday," from Winthrop Pike, Philip Cruickshank and William Marvel.

Dr. Cruickshank said he'd like to see Wednesday afternoons devoted to helping kids who were having trouble in normal classroom situations; Mr. Pike said he was "more disenchanted than ever before" and warned that the two-year approval was "not prudent" and could complicate teacher salary negotiations.

In voting "yes," Dr. Powsner suggested two-year approval might free the program from constant pre-occupation with evaluating it self. He asked for evaluations the public can comprehend.

New Council. The Human Relations Council proposal grew out of meetings held last fall after disturbances at the high school. Margaret R. Hastings, W. Brinton Whitall and Leonard Brown are the founding fathers. The board named its members Eric Craig and Hannah Fox to talk with the three and report back in March.

Sponsors propose a 15-member Council drawn chiefly from teachers and administrators, thereby insuring "elements of self examination and the prospect of human relations improvement."

The Council would examine the school system for barriers to understanding; seek out people who feel disadvantaged and listen to them; find out what, outside the schools, causes bad human relations and work with other community groups that have similar ideas.

Mayors of both Princetons and the Civil Rights Commission approve the Council, the board heard.

Milk Shake. The cost of milk is going up a penny. Milk cost has risen so high that milk costs the district more than the district is getting back. Another rise in the base price is expected next month.

Ronald Novak, business manager explained that milk cost the district 8 cents a half-pint; kids will now pay 5 cents, the state pays 1 cent and the 1 cent left over is not profit, but handling charge.

Business Outlook

preferably, in his view, as the place to especially retailers rather than offices. "This is where the future is," he believes, "and it's what the people who live in Princeton want."

It's also what the region wants, he says. Defining Princeton's trading area by the addresses of babies born in the Princeton Medical Center, Mr. Cosby suggests that the parents of these babies, some of whom live closer to hospitals in Trenton or New Brunswick than to Princeton, know the community because they come here to shop for special items. Groceries they buy in a supermarket on the highway somewhere.

These stores out on the highway, Mr. Carnevale concedes, will indeed draw shoppers who want more general merchandise. He isn't afraid of competition for what he calls Princeton's "high quality" shops, but he is uneasy that the coming One shopping center may cause the CBD to lose some of its attraction.

Spending Savings? One of the sharpest increases in the 1972 Business Index is the 20% climb in savings. The increase, in Mr. Cosby's banker's idiom, is "a negative confidence indicator."

"When people feel uncertain, they save," he explains. Since this has been the case for the past several years, there is now a backlog of demands. When it breaks, and it could happen this spring, Mr. Cosby thinks, it could create a sudden, heavy boom.

"The Vietnam War has been depressing a psychological dampener on everyone," he says. He also points to over-withholding on 1972 income taxes, and estimates refunds as the kind of "found" money that, for many families, could really trigger a change.

Let's shoot the works many people will feel that way. And this may have a momentum that makes people dip into those excess savings."

Loans went up by 20 per cent, too, and checking accounts, in dollar figures, by 9 per cent. (Figures come from Princeton's two banks and two savings and loan associations. The arrival in town of a third bank during 1973 is regarded by most observers as another indicator of Princeton's economic sturdiness.)

July, Maybe there are just more people around to open checking accounts and to put their money into savings; employment, with one or two exceptions, increased during 1972 in that baby area around Princeton.

Educational Testing Service jumped from 1,537 to 1,976 during the year; EMC from 400 to 457, and the 400 figure was itself a jump from the 375 employees of 1970. Global added four to its staff, for a 600 total in 1972.

Western Electric, which increased its staff from 425 to 725, fell back to 671 in 1972, and RCA, which has been pulling in for several years now, reduced its complement from 1,340 to 1,275.

Princeton University has 2,287 non-academic employees to support its academic staff of 127.

Births. The birth-rate took a dive in 1972; there were 1,070 births, compared to 1,256 the year before... a drop of 166. Births to Borough residents declined from 65 to 51; in Township residents, from 109 to 107. Records show 908 babies born in the Princeton Medical Center to parents who aren't residents of either Borough or Township.

Deaths. Borough statistics show 457 deaths, over 479 for the previous year. But the figures are misleading because the Medical Center is in the Borough and the 457 includes 279 non-Princeton residents who died in the hospital. Actually, 85 Borough residents died in 1972. Township vital statistics show 99 deaths.

Marriages. Licenses were issued in the Township for 75 marriages, and in the Borough for 212.

Housing. Can these couples with new marriage licenses and a new child find a place to live in Princeton? That's a fundamental community question not answered by Business Index statistics.

But the index does show a 34 per cent increase in property transfers in the Township where property turnover is most likely to mean home buying. The Borough registered a 15 per cent increase.

The quantum jump in new housing starts in the Borough reflects construction of the new condominium on Harrison Street. New housing was down 10 per cent in the Township.

Housing and the Central Business District are linked, in the view of William Cosby. He sees a great demand for luxury garden-style apartments for older couples, a group which would also support warmly a specialty shop CBD, attractive and well-planned perhaps along the Age lines.

Luxury apartments might be in the future; luxury housing is here now, and Mr. Cosby asks in amazement, "How long will people be willing to pay these ridiculous real-estate prices and the tax implications that go with them?" He also remarks that, in real estate, "the price is being made to show these prices down."

High-income apartments occupied by couples who no longer have school-age children, would provide a financial offset for low-income housing, the banker points out, and add to rateables in both Borough and Township, rateables have gone up by 8 per cent in the Township, and 5 per cent in the Borough. In dollar figures, this increase in the Township's tax base is $2,170,300, in round figures; the Borough increase is $512,400.

TOWNSHIP PLANS STUDY
Of Cable Television. Cable TV, a "first" regional application for planning money and the Yedin housing case were features of the first press conference held by Township Mayor Jay Bleiman since he took office New Year's Day. The meeting was held Tuesday.

A cable TV committee would be one of three ad hoc, "one-shot" citizens groups, appointed to study a single subject in depth, report and disband.

The TV group would recommend guidelines so the Township will be prepared when franchise requests, which Mayor Bleiman regards as inevitable, are made. The mayor wants representatives of University, school board and other community groups on the committee.

Another citizens' group would study municipal management and recommend improved procedures and ways to standardize Township Borough housekeeping methods. The third would examine solid waste collection and disposal.

Housing - Environment. Township and Borough have applied to the state Department of Community Affairs for Federal (Housing and Urban Development) money to finance part of the current housing study, and the forthcoming flood control and master drainage study.

Mayor Bleiman thinks this may be the first such Borough-Township request. It was presented, he said, as a regional request, for a study linking housing and the environment. Federal HUD money would pay two-thirds of the $70,000

"INAUGURATION OF CONSCIENCE:" A silent, double line of marchers walked down Nassau from Vandeventer to Borough Hall Friday, the day before the Presidential inaugural in a demonstration for peace in Vietnam. Here at Borough Hall are the marchers — an estimated 180 — with the Princeton Battle Monument on the right. Mayor Robert W. Cawley, Township Committeeman Abbot Low Maffat, Rabbi Hershal Malt, the Rev. Eugene D. Erickson and William W. Cook of the Princeton High School faculty, addressed the marchers.

involved and the Township and Borough would divide the other one-third, the mayor said. The request for flood-control money was made first. When Thomas Tams of the Township's engineering department went to Trenton for information about flood control, he learned of the HUD fund. The Regional Planning Board then decided to ask for aid in the housing study. Mayor Bleiman and Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley have asked the state's Department of Community Affairs to consider the two applications as a single unit. No decision is expected until July 1. Committee said last week that it would have preferred to be the body making final judgment. Mr. Yedin must still go before the site-plan review board, and Mayor Bleiman pointed out that the developer could initiate site plan review even now, while Congress

The mayor linked Committee's deliberations to a quotation from President John F. Kennedy's book, "Profiles in Courage": "There are few if any issues where all the truth and all the right and all the angels are on one side."

State Here Only. The spin of Lake Carnegie between the Washington Road and Harrison Street bridges is now the only skating rink in the area.

Township Committee passed the ordinance Monday night. The restriction also applies to night skating, which will be allowed anywhere.

Also, the Joint Recreation Board will retain the right to set safety regulations, which in that case would be in effect.

A letter of protest from Mr. J. J. Chace, Jr., charged that the University, which had requested the ordinance, didn't really own the lake and that the owner of the lake and the Griffin returned sharply that if the lake was public property, then indeed it was the Township's duty to enact safety regulations regarding its use.

Buy Cheaper. Committee ordered the ordinance allowing joint purchasing with Mercer County, then promptly arranged to buy 100,000 gallons through the county at a saving of 15 cents per gallon. The price is $13.50 for regular, 1.65 for premium. The purchase is being made jointly with the Borough and the Princeton Regional School Board.

Ben Chace was appointed to a five-year term on the City Brook Regional Sewer Authority. Mr. Chace, defeated last fall for reelection to Township Committee, had served as the Township's representative on the Authority.

Committee adopted two resolutions of Councilman Abbott Low Moffat designed to make new ordinances more intelligible. One measure proposes varied type style in published ordinances so that new and altered passages are easy to identify. The second resolution asks various boards and agencies to prepare summaries explaining the objectives of ordinances proposed by the agencies.

Committee adopted the ordinance providing $1,000 more or widening the final segment of Alexander, then awarded the bid to P. O. Inc. for $10,175.

caused damage to part of a window. They attributed the cause of the fire to "unattended cooking".

IDA PARKED CAR TARGET
Of Molotov Cocktail. A Molotov Cocktail, which did not explode, was thrown Sunday morning at a car parked in the Institute for Defense Analyses compound off Prospect Avenue.

Chief Michael Carnevale said that the bottle and its contents have been to state police labs to be analyzed. An official at IDA notified police of the incident at 8:54 a.m. Sgt. Robert Anderson investigated.

CASHES STOLEN CHECK

Trenton Man Charged. Kenneth H. Goodwyn, 21, of Trenton, was arrested Monday on Witherspoon Street by Township Detectives Norman Servis and Frank Boecanuso who charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses. Police said that Goodwyn cashed a check at the Princeton Bank and Trust for $150.50 which he had stolen from the Institute for Applied Psychotherapy building, 291 Witherspoon. He was later released on his own recognizance to await a hearing in Township court on February 21.

Shoplifter Arrested. Another Trenton resident, Henry Mason, 25, was arrested Saturday afternoon in Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center by Ptl. Olindo Carnevale.

Charged with shoplifting a pair of trousers and a shirt valued at $19, Mason is also scheduled to appear in court on the 21st.

7 STORY BUILDING?

Sheehan Makes Application. Timothy J. Sheehan Jr., 216 Russell Road, has filed an application with the Borough Zoning Board to add four floors to the half-finished office building which he owns at the corner of Nassau Street and Mackham Road. The proposed new floors would increase the height from 35 feet to about 75 feet.

In addition, Mr. Sheehan wants to use a portion of the uppermost floor for on-premise consumption of alcoholic beverages. He is also asking for waiver of the required site plan review by the Regional Planning Board.

His application is the only case the Board of Adjustment will hear at its meeting Thursday evening at 8:15 in Borough Hall.

To add the proposed four floors, Mr. Sheehan needs zoning relief from bulk requirements, including floor-area ratio, height — the maximum is 35 feet for a residential office zone in which the building is located and number of floors. There is the allowed maximum.

He also needs relief from off-street parking requirements. A member of the engineering department has estimated that 77 new additional spaces will be required, plus additional spaces for the area devoted to liquor consumption. The latter is based on the number of seats — one for every five.

Mr. Sheehan also needs a variance for two loading berths which are required under the new zoning ordinance. The use of liquor needs a recommendation for a use variance to Mayor and Council since the consumption of alcoholic beverages is not a permitted use in an RO zone.

The erection of the building, ever since Mr. Sheehan obtained his original building permit in 1968, has been marked with run ins with the Borough zoning board, engineering department and court battles.

In a recent development, Mr. Sheehan this week asked the board that it postpone his application until its February meeting. He now wants to add a restaurant/bar on the first floor and not the seventh as originally proposed and he wrote the board that he needed more time to clear up the issue of his liquor license with Mayor and Council.

He said that he would temporarily withdraw his application if the board refused to grant a postponement. Zoning board chairman Charles St. John said that he is in agreement with Mr. Sheehan's request but that the entire board would have to vote on the whether or not to postpone Thursday's scheduled meeting. The board will meet Thursday night as scheduled and then will go into executive session where it is expected it will agree to the adjournment.

CHESBRO IS NAMED
As Chamber's Man of the Year. The Chamber of Commerce has named Dr. Paul R. Chesbro as its 1973 Man of the Year.

Headmaster of Princeton's Hun School since 1951, Dr. Chesbro has aided the growth of the school and its elevation in scholastic standards.

He served as magistrate of the Princeton Borough Municipal Court from 1946 through 1952.

Born in Mystic, Connecticut, Dr. Chesbro graduated from Bulkeley High School in New London, received a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1926 from Amherst College and his Master of Arts degree from Princeton University in 1927.

Lawrence Institute of Technology granted him a Doctorate of Science degree in 1951 and after graduate work in chemistry at Princeton, he became assistant principal at the Hun School in 1929, served in other institutions until he was named headmaster at Hun in 1951.

Dr. Chesbro has had a long association with the Princeton YMCA and of the Princeton Rotary Club of which he was named its only Paul Harris Fellow.

CAR IS DEMOLISHED

On Princeton-Kingston Road. A car was demolished Monday afternoon when it skidded out of control on the Princeton-Kingston Road and struck a tree.

The driver, Tad S. Wacke, 21, of Kendall Park was treated at Princeton Medical Center for lacerations of the forehead. He told police that when he pulled back into his lane after passing a car not far from Snowden Lane his car skidded and ran off the road way.

It spun around on a lawn and the rear end struck a large elm tree. It was raining and wet at the time. Witnesses told police that no excessive speed was involved and Sgt. Robert Hlenock issued no summonses.

Three Car Mishap. One woman was injured Saturday afternoon following a three car collision at Harrison Street and Valley Road opposite one of the exits of the Princeton Shopping Center.

Mrs. Helen Hiltner, 64, of Westcott Road, was treated for contusions and abrasions at Princeton Medical Center after the side of her small foreign car was pushed in. Ptl. Olindo Carnevale ticketed Peter Tyge, 29, of Skillman with careless driving.

According to police, Mrs. Hiltner was exiting from the shopping center and was crossing Harrison Street to enter Valley Road when her car was struck on the side by the Tyge car. The impact forced the Hiltner car into the front of a car stopped at the foot of Valley Road operated by St. Clair Brickhouse, 35, 216 Witherspoon Street. The other two drivers escaped injury.

2 Township School Candidates Give Views on Current Issues

Gail Pietriferio

Fred Bauer

This is the second in a series of interviews with candidates for the Princeton Regional School Board. This week, TOWN TOPICS interviews the two Township candidates: Fred Bauer, 8 Littlebrook Road, and Gail Pietriferio, 273 Mt. Lucas. Both have children in the schools.

"The number one priority of the Princeton schools should be a sound curriculum," said Mrs. Gail Pietriferio, candidate for the Township's single school board seat in an interview this week.

"We need the same standard of quality education for all groups and when any group of students fails to attain this standard, it's our job to help them attain it. We also need a single standard of discipline, because discipline and education go hand-in-hand. If there is disruption in the halls, students lose an environment conducive to education in the classroom."

The candidate listed among her concerns evaluation, better communication, drugs, an active school board and a budget in which "we spend less increasing the number of administrators and more on programs related to educating children."

She has not reached a definite conclusion on proposed administrative changes, she said, and had not yet heard enough information to allow her to form an opinion. "Some teachers have told me they don't think the plan is much of a money saver," she commented.

"We should not stifle creativity, but children need the basic tools with which to be creative," she declared. "Innovative programs can be very rewarding for some, but totally inappropriate for others. We should evaluate carefully: what kids best fit a program, what teachers are best equipped to handle certain programs."

"The single most important problem facing all schools today, is learning to make diversity a strength, and diversity IS a strength. If you believe in individuals," said Fred Bauer, Township school board candidate, in an interview this week.

Schools have tried to respond to diversity by offering both traditional and innovative programs, and occasionally in Princeton communication and information about new approaches have been lacking, misunderstood, or both, the candidate said.

"Some teachers are perplexed when students show little interest in the subject they have taught, and taught well, for years," he continued. "Other teachers, responding to changed attitudes and offering more variety, tell of exciting experiences, like the young man who suddenly becomes interested in algebra as he discovers a correlation between algebra and his afternoon job, a work study project arranged by the business ed. department."

Basic Skills. "Obviously there are basic skills all students must have," Mr. Bauer commented. "Recent statistics report 20% of our nation's high school students can't read their assignments. If the figure is half that, we're in trouble. But some students are finding new meaning in school because of individualized programs where the teacher is not a spewer of facts which the child is required to memorize but the stimulator who encourages children to investigate and discover for themselves."

"The child then learns by doing, gaining insight into concepts, instead of storing up static information."

"There is more to a child's development than acquiring basic skills," he declared. "There are hard to measure qualities like independence, self confidence, attitudes."

Mrs. Pietrinferno

Wrong Emphasis. Mrs. Pietrinferno said she was disturbed by "an emphasis on individual choices, without an emphasis on responsibility for these choices."

Referring to the high school's open campus, she observed that all students are allowed to participate regardless of their academic status. Some students, she suggested, would be better off in remedial programs, or "a more defined situation." Some problems, she suggested, stem from not demanding enough responsibility on the part of both students and adults.

Turning to the drug problem, which she has found is a worry to parents she has talked with, Mrs. Pietrinferno declared "drugs should not be tolerated in the schools and drug users should not be allowed to be disruptive."

"It is naive to think the schools are equipped to handle all the problems of a student on drugs," she continued. "The school should refer these kids to professionals who ARE equipped to handle problems. And while using drugs or in possession of them, these kids should not be allowed in school."

Discipline. One standard of education and one standard of discipline are essential, she said. "Groups that are disruptive must be disciplined so that a minimum level of order is observed; punishment cannot be avoided completely, and it is naive to think it can. But we must ask why students are disruptive and what we can do. Perhaps they need smaller classes.

An active school board, the candidate believes, should exert its power "to ask questions of the administration and to get answers; parents don't always get satisfactory answers from the administrators." Some board members have told her, she said, that the administration has sometimes said to them, you can't ask these questions because you aren't educators.

Communication between all elements of the community should be improved, she said, suggesting that the Wednesday Program might provide a place and time for parents and teachers to talk.

"Teachers can relieve parents' doubts about various programs; parents can express their problems."

"Hard data" should be available, she believes, as a basis for discussions about programs. Children in different kinds of programs should be tested for reading level: "are some programs doing as well as others in teaching basic skills?" is a question such data could answer, she stated.

"Generally speaking, I don't bring a negative attitude to school problems," the candidate said, "in many ways, educational quality has declined in our schools—for example, we need a higher priority given to basic skills, and more remedial help. But the emphasis on individual creativity is an asset, and innovation must not be stifled, but evaluated."

Bauer

classes and variations of each, traditional teachers and ones who find innovative methods more challenging, should all be in the school system, Mr. Bauer believes.

"Whatever our efforts, they all need to be regularly examined with critical eyes. We will make some mistakes, but we may also make some revolutionary discoveries about education. In light of our current dilemmas, calculated risk-taking is in order."

Mr. Bauer returned to the teacher as "the single most important ingredient in the learning situation."

"I have sat in classrooms in every Princeton school," he said, "in exciting multi-age classes, and exciting self-contained, single grades, and when classes were exciting, it was because of the teachers."

Standardized tests should be regularly administered, he continued, and the results shared with parents. Teachers should also be evaluated, because "you cannot stuff off the development of teachers, especially under our onerous tenure laws; we need programs to stimulate professional development."

Parents in Princeton are concerned about discipline, evaluation of programs, the quality of teaching and rising school costs, Mr. Bauer has found.

"Minimum standards of behavior are essential to make sure there is order and a 'learning atmosphere,' he declared. "Discipline must be equal for all students. Extortion, vandalism, theft, violence — all should be dealt with as the serious offenses they are."

Priorities. Where costs are concerned, school board members will need great sensitivity to line up priorities, the candidate said.

"And I take strong issue with people who see education as just another business; our children's schooling is demeaned by the comparison. Education is not a box of cereal to be processed, weighed, priced and distributed on a money-back guarantee. It is a long-term proposition the results of which may take years to assess. We need to be inordinately careful about easy economics."

Mr. Bauer expressed himself as "deeply grateful for the educational opportunities my children have here." He urged residents of the community "to refrain from taking dogmatic, either-or positions," and characterized himself as sharing "both traditional and more liberal educational philosophies."

What the Princeton community needs most, he suggested, is patience. He quoted the story of the farmer who was so dissatisfied with his slow-growing crop that he gave each seedling a slight pull, hoping he would help it to grow. The next morning, all the seedlings were withered; impatience had cost him the crop.

W. Windsor Budget Up

West Windsor and Plainsboro residents will feel the effect of the new regional high school in their tax rates, if they approve the proposed $4,369,487 budget on February 6.

The school budget will push the West Windsor school tax rate up 41 cents to $2.44 per $100 of assessed valuation. The Plainsboro rate would jump 13 cents in Plainsboro to $1.67 per $100. This would mean a $132 increase on a $30,000 house in West Windsor and $39 in increase in Plainsboro.

Woodford was taken to Mercer County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bond. He faces a hearing in Borough Court on February 7.

Coffee will be served half an hour before the lecture, in Bainbridge House, the Society's headquarters across Vandeventer from the church.

Reservations should be made in advance by calling 921-7648. Admission is by ticket, which can be obtained from Bainbridge House with a donation of $1.

Mr. Richey, owner of The Little Old Mill in Princeton Junction, will show how to care for antiques and to remove scratch marks. He will also advise the audience on separating the real antique from the fake. He is a graduate of the Metropolitan School of Furniture Finishing in Passaic.

UNIVERSITY TO CLOSE

For National Day of Mourning, Princeton University will observe the National Day of Mourning proclaimed for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson this Thursday, with a memorial service in the University Chapel at 12:15 p.m. University offices will be closed that afternoon.

President Johnson received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Princeton on May 11, 1966. The occasion was a Special Convocation to mark the dedication of the new building for the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, at which Mr. Johnson was the principal speaker.

The Special Convocation, preceded by an academic procession, was held on the plaza in front of the new Woodrow Wilson School building, designed by Minoru Yamasaki. President Johnson was the 16th U.S. President to receive an honorary degree from Princeton.

FUNDS SOUGHT HERE

To Aid Back Mai Hospital. The Bach Mai Emergency Relief Fund, which was started by a group of Harvard doctors has begun a money raising campaign here.

It is a different fund raising drive, because the proceeds reach the hospital within a week, with no funds used to cover administrative expenses.

The headquarters in Cambridge are housed in a third floor loft of a warehouse, with cinderblock as chairs, boards nailed together as tables, telephones on the floor, volunteers are staffing the place around the clock. In Princeton, the Fund for Peace Education acts as the local coordination center, free of charge.

Medical Supplies are bought through the Massachusetts General Hospital at Wholesale prices and shipped directly to Hanoi, usually escorted by a volunteer who sees that all materials go directly to the primitive Emergency room which is underground the ruins of what used to be the most modern teaching hospital in Vietnam.

For over a year now, Medical Aid for Indochina has been sending thousands of dollars worth of medical equipment and supplies to the Red Crosses of North Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia. But since the intensive bombing in December, which not only levelled the hospital buildings, but killed 25 doctors and nurses and an unknown number of patients, Medical Aid has developed dependable means of transporting the most needed supplies directly to the destroyed hospital.

Bach Mai is in urgent need of dry plasma, glucose, antibiotics and equipment for blood transfusions. Princeton has set a weekly goal of $2,000 which will be used exclusively to buy those items.

DIAGNOSIS AIDED

By New Instrument at Hospital. A pencil-sized instrument now in use at the Medical Center at Princeton is helping gynecologists make diagnoses and perform some surgical procedures at considerable savings to the patient. The Laparoscope—a sophisticated "fiber optics" system enclosed in a tiny tubular device—permits physicians to peer within the abdominal cavity without the use of major surgery.

"Fiber optics" involves a "cold" light source which transmits an image along the Laparoscope's length without heat-producing electrical power. Though insertion of the instrument requires a half-inch incision and local anesthesia, major surgery for diagnostic purposes—and, on occasion, a procedural necessity—can now often be avoided.

To date, the Laparoscope at the Medical Center has been used to check suspected female disorders, and has proven effective in certain sterilization procedures. Not only is the effect one of more comfort for the patient, but by eliminating the need for surgery, patient stays can and are being shortened. And financial savings are being realized by many of the Medical Center's gynecological patients.

The diagnosis achieved with the Laparoscope might indicate surgery is needed, but they often suggest medical remedies," says Dr. William E. Pollard, chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the Medical Center.

NAMED TO DENTAL STAFF
At Medical Center, Dr. James P. Heldre has been named an associate member of the dental staff of the Princeton Medical Center.

He will join the 21 dentists now comprising the department of dentistry, section of general dentistry, at The Medical Center.

Fred Bauer

Township School Board Candidate

Is A Good Listener And...

... a tough questioner. In the past few weeks, he has quizzed hundreds of people throughout the community about public education in Princeton. One thing he has learned is that the majority of parents believe their children are getting a good education, but nearly all raise questions of concern. Most frequently their comments focus on 1) school discipline, 2) evaluation of what and how much their children are learning, 3) the quality of teaching and 4) rising school costs.

How Does Fred Bauer View These Concerns?

(1) DISCIPLINE—Minimum standards of behavior are essential to insure order and a learning atmosphere. The "open campus" plan at the high school, for example, has such guidelines and most students observe them. A few have not and they have been disciplined. Though some people tell me discipline has not always been fair and consistent, I believe the administration when it says equal justice is its goal. The newly proposed "in school" suspension plan with tutorial help is one which I approve. Extortion, vandalism, theft and violence are all serious offenses and should be dealt with as such.

(2) EVALUATION—Formal evaluation of our children's basic skills can be made and should be made at regular intervals. Results of these tests should be shared openly by teachers with parents, because they offer indications of a child's relative achievement and progress. However, we all now recognize that there is much more to a child's development than learning basic skills, important though they be. As a parent, I am also deeply interested in my child's growth in such hard-to-measure areas as attitudes, values, independence, self confidence.

(3) TEACHER QUALITY—I know from first hand experience that Princeton schools are blessed with many extraordinarily talented and dedicated teachers. Nonetheless, all teachers as well as all programs in which they function should be regularly and thoroughly evaluated. It is the only way to be sure of quality. Anyone who can slough off the development of teachers as an educational "fringe" cannot be serious about wanting good schools. In light of onerous tenure laws, programs which stimulate our teachers' professional growth are not only desirable but imperative.

(4) SCHOOL COSTS—We are all concerned about rising costs of education. The "Better" decision now before the state supreme court may lead to a new method of financing public education, but meanwhile property owners bear most of the load. Princeton's falling enrollment compounds the problem and as a result we face some tough decisions as to educational priorities. School board members will need great sensitivity and understanding to order these priorities. I for one take strong issue with people who see education as just another business, a ring of balogna or a box of cereal to be processed, weighed, packaged, priced and distributed on a money back guarantee. First of all, the analogy between education and a business operation is a bad one. Our children's schooling is determined by the comparison. Profit and loss sheets can be studied annually, but education is a long term proposition, the results of which often take many years to assess. Therefore, we need to be inordinately careful about our economies.

To elect an ACTIVE, not interpretive school board...

Princeton Borough:

Princeton Township:

Gail Pietrinferno

Andrew Shelpuk: "How to get the best education for the most people with the least expenditure. That's what concerns me most." "Quality control, accountability, cost analysis are vital to any successful business, and I'm not sure the school's machinery in these areas is running as efficiently as it could."

Hawley Walerman: "To insure a quality education for all, I believe the school board must assume leadership in determining the community's real educational goals. Once this direction is defined, the proper emphasis on discipline and respect, the importance of teaching basic skills, and the necessity for evaluating all programs will be evident. I shall always support a strong athletic program in our schools."

Gail Pietrinferno: "Discipline and education go hand in hand. Without proper discipline in the halls, we lose the environment conducive to education in the classrooms." "Many innovative programs may be rewarding for some children, yet totally inappropriate for others. Programs such as the Open Classroom should be evaluated carefully to pinpoint their strengths and weaknesses. Individual creativity should not be stifled, but our children must learn the basic skills in order to attain this."

come perilously close to the scare tactics used in blockbusting. It may have seemed imaginative or amusing but Mr. Freericks, as a realist, knows that blockbusting is illegal.

I do appeal at least to the Township Committee to carefully weigh factual evidence as opposed to wild suppositions. The Committee is already on record as acknowledging the need of our lower income citizens. Let Princeton behave decently towards the solution of these needs of its own will and conviction rather than wait for the court battles against restrictive zoning which are raging in so many other communities across this state. This housing has been delayed long enough!

ESTELLE KUHN

74 Woodland Drive

Housing Should Be Dispersed.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I suggest concerning the "Yedlin proposal" that instead of 100 "units" for low income families and the elderly being herded together like a concentration camp in one small area that these "units" be dispersed, say in groups of 10, or better 5, in various Princeton areas.

The town of the future, I like to hope, will be so planned that no one can point to a ghetto, or mansions of the rich, or areas where the elderly live.

Fifty "units" for the elderly make an old folks home, I almost qualify myself for this category and certainly my last choice would be a "unit" surrounded by 49 like units all occupied by people as old as I am.

Why choose expensive Princeton? Certainly not for the climate. Better a mobile "home" in Florida with, I'd hope, a couple next doors in their forties.

The old can learn from the young and vice versa. Dump all the old together and you have a sad community meagerly surviving on reminiscences.

Segregation by race, color, religion, income, and age is, I submit, unhealthy. Segregation is cheap? You're wrong. It isn't!

GEORGE GREENE

121 Mt. Lucas Road

Time to Halt Salary Hikes

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Over the last quarter century, as a strong advocate of quality public education, I have urged and have been glad to observe community correction of recklessly low pay scales. But, in the last three or four years, we appear to have over shot; the quality is disappearing, yet the pay keeps pushing upward.

If one subtracts the sum of administration - and instruction - salary costs from the total Princeton school budget, one finds that the remainder has risen an average of 5% per annum in the 6 year period since the regional school was formed in 1966. And this seems satisfactory, considering the general inflation; nation wide, goods and services have risen about 35% in the last ten years.

However, since 1966 the salary costs per pupil have risen, on average, 14% in each of the last six years! That is, they have more than doubled! As described in Town Topics (11 January), the unions, apparently supported by the School Board, appear to believe that whatever they win in negotiated salary guides is guaranteed by a Federal Pay Board, and that the Pay Board also guarantees each individual an additional 5.5%.

This is nonsense, the inflationary folly of which is self evident if one contemplates a nation-wide increase in total wages of 14% per annum. The actual objective of the Pay Board has been to confine this latter figure to 3.5%.

On Feb. 6, the School Board asks us to endorse still one more inflationary budget, this one proposing to hike the salary-costs per pupil by 11%. Isn't it time to call a halt? In its public brochure, the Board was rather unhelpful, in its depiction of the local tax effect. An increase of nearly 10% in local school-tax is involved! The Board graciously focussed attention upon only half of this, conveniently (2) distracting attention from the inexorable fact that the other half is merely deferred to a succeeding tax bill.

There is yet another important matter in need of public scrutiny. Comparison of budgets for this year shows that total cost per pupil in the Princeton system already exceeds the average of the other eight Mercer districts by about $550, of which some $400 represents salary costs per pupil. That is, Princeton already spends 50% more in salary costs per pupil than the Mercer norm! Cause of this discrepancy appears traceable mainly to the existence in the Princeton system of extra administration, plus a large number, about 50, of very well paid "special" teachers, over and above a normal classroom staff.

The community benefit from such an "innovation" may, in deed, be worthwhile or not. Until the Board and the administration work energetically to produce public comprehension of the program objectives, procedures and evaluated productivity, the taxpayer and the voter have no grounds for objective decision in confidence.

You might expect to find these important issues addressed in the two pages of administration boiler plate included in the Board's current budget brochure. And, while you grope your way through professional fog, you might grade this composition for syntax, clarity and relevance. Then, while you cautiously ponder the prospects for Princeton's children obtaining quality instruction in simple arithmetic, effective self-expression, elementary business, economics, or social responsibility, you, too, may come to the conclusion that this is definitely the year to vote down the current expense budget.

Recycling Troubles

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We have sent the following letter to the Princeton Borough Service and would hope that other Borough residents experiencing the same problem would do likewise.

We write this letter only after many frustrating months of trying to participate in Princeton Borough's curbside recycling program. To be generous, you come to our block only about half the time and then only when the Borough Engineering office has called the day before to remind you. It becomes more and more difficult to find a place to keep two or three months' accumulation of recyclables and is certainly discouraging to any potential participants in the program.

Our block, the dead end portion of Spruce Street, is admittedly difficult to navigate, but certainly that can not be a legitimate reason for neglecting us, especially when the program is still trying to prove itself economically viable. We hope, therefore, that in the future you will consistently collect our recyclables.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of a letter we have sent to Mayor Robert W. Cawley. It is our hope that other municipalities as well as private organizations and individuals reading flags will act on this suggestion as well.

We are Princeton Borough residents who appreciate your leadership in efforts to end the war.

Skating Restrictions Attacked.
 To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of a letter I have sent to Township Committee.

Richard Steinberger
 96 Mountain Avenue

I would like to raise strong objection to the passage of any law restricting the boundaries of ice skating on Lake Carnegie. I do so with the feeling that I am not alone in my objection, but that others in the community have merely acquiesced because they felt that objecting required too much time for a not very important issue. I believe that the underlying issues are more important than at first they seem.

Consider first the legal situation. Both Town Topics and the Packet have unquestionably reported that the University owns Lake Carnegie. However, Lake Carnegie is part of the free flowing Stony Brook Mill Run River system and therefore is a publicly owned river. (P. 404, v. 11 Jones Legal Treatise, p. 4410 Black's Law Dictionary.) I welcome correction on the point.

Therefore it seems the University should no more be able to rule the Lake than it should be able to rule the Township streets or parks, though it is trying to impose the University may control access to the Lake from the land it owns, but I can think of ways in which such rules may be literally circumvented.

However, I do not wish to rest my arguments on the extreme legalism of this situation (though ground at best). Rather, let us turn to common sense for I claim there are no good reasons for this new law and that it will restrict the freedom of some without providing any redeeming benefit to the community as a whole.

published rules concerning the Lake, state that "Those who choose to skate on Lake Carnegie do so at their own risk", and that "Parents are responsible for children skating on the lake." I fully agree with these statements.

We also then find the statement that "Lake Carnegie is private property"; and it seems to me that the whole implication of the remainder of the publication is the contradiction that someone other than oneself is responsible for skaters on the lake and therefore we must have these rules and regulations.

Why do we need this new law and these rules? When an individual skates on the Lake that person is aware of the risks involved and it seems to me that the individual endangers no one else; if children skate on the Lake, of course they do so under their parents' responsibility and I assume their parents are aware of the risks involved. (It appears the media, the Recreation Department, and Princeton University are trying hard to convince us that this is not the case, that if something happens to a person on the Lake, that person is not responsible, and the implication seems to be the University is.)

This is the dominant communication of the Recreation Department's publication. For some reason, the University is totally irresponsible party to this. I never implied a new suddenly (indeed, only two years ago one could find where one could find this) for individuals skating on the Lake.

What is the rationale (legal or otherwise) behind this? Why if one skates on the Lake at one's own risk, must there be a law forbidding individuals to skate in certain areas? I find this contradictory, and to a young person looking for a responsible society to grow in to, it must be confusing.

Is it possible that someone (an insurance company, lawyers?) has convinced the University to be liable for accidents on the Lake? Why should the University be liable for accidents over which it has no control? Even the University cannot control the thickness of the ice.

Of course it may be dangerous to skate on certain portions of the Lake. But the establishment of this restrictive law does not make the skating safer; it merely forbids a person who wishes to assume the risk of the more dangerous area from doing so under the threat of punishment.

I know people who skated on the Lake because they found singular beauty in the stillness of skating alone on the Lake's deserted branches, and other people who delighted in skating the long distance from Alexander Street to Kingston and back. They endangered no one else. Why must their freedom now be restricted?

It seems to me the job of the Recreation Department ought to include insuring the freedom of these people to skate as they would on the public lake as well as to provide safer skating conditions for those who wish them.

The Department can suggest safe skating areas, provide safety devices, educate, and warn of dangers; but why does it now wish to force people to skate in certain areas?

I hope the Township Committee will reconsider this unjustifiable law. It is a law which I believe is being foisted on the community by the University "to make it easier to enforce any rules," but for no good reason; it will unjustly and unnecessarily restrict our freedom. And one can only guess at the University's motivations.

Correction

Town Topics reported an error last week that the "York Five" had allegedly attempted to blow up a railroad switch. Friends of the five are quick to point out that they were merely allegedly pouring concrete on it, not attempting to blow it up.

News Of The CHURCHES

UP EARLY...
And Off To Church. About 40 teenagers rout out of bed early on Friday mornings to attend the 6:45 a.m. gatherings of Koinonia.

It strikes a note of simplicity and communal caring in a complex world. Members sit on the floor, chairs, tables; they sing hymns with a beat, and pass a bowl of doughnut balls.

A meeting may find a theme from the Bible — or from Berigan — and spontaneous questioning begins.

There's a time of meditation, and out of the quiet comes a student's voice. "Thank you Father for helping me learn this weekend, what friendship really means." The silence hovers again and then, another voice. "Thank you, Father for giving me hope."

Other voices, offer simple thanks. Someone says, "Father, help us to help —, who needs it right now?"

Koinonia has a time, usually, for small group consideration of each other's problems. It's a supportive group. The name Koinonia is a Greek word meaning a unique kind of fellowship.

About two years ago, when the guitar playing William Forbes was a student at Princeton Seminary, he began Koinonia with eight young people at First Presbyterian Church. When the group grew to include 20, the early morning meetings were moved to the Christ Congregation building opposite Princeton High School.

Koinonia is a project of First Presbyterian Church. Rev. Forbes said recently, "but there is no kind of denominational trait to it. Originally all of the kids were from the high school. Now we have four university students. A nun came to Koinonia for a while."

"When we began, we ate breakfast together, but the kids decided this took up too much time! In the summer we meet in people's houses, we've taken several three-day canoe trips together. Right now we're planning another all-family skating party."

A meeting during Christmas vacation started off with a song in the "It's a great world" vein, a liturgical melody composed by a young Roman Catholic priest, with Bill Forbes accompanying on the guitar. The session was held at the Forbes's house on Franklin Avenue. Latecomers squeezing into the room until there was only space for the doughnut bowl in the center of the floor. There was easy laughter and joshing between the songs that opened the session.

From Rev. Forbes, "Koinonia meets the need of a self-motivated kid. At Christ Congregation, they let themselves in, they clean up afterwards. They're marvelous. Those who don't have a first period class often linger; the others have been late to class more than once!"

Rounding out Koinonia is Mrs. Forbes — young, imaginative and very much in tune with the members. She told the group that permission had been received for an overnight at the Church manse, unoccupied since the Rev. Dr. Meisel's departure last September.

Koinonia, now involved in consideration of the Book of Acts, will soon be deciding the next turn it will take.

PIC COLLECTS FUNDS
For Hanoi Hospital. The Princeton Interfaith Council has authorized its treasurer to receive funds for Bach Mai Hospital in Hanoi, North Vietnam, destroyed in the Christ-mass bombings, according to the Rev. Kenneth Dannenhauer of Christ Congregation, corresponding secretary.

The executive committee met January 15 and was attended by a majority of its members, he said. Checks may be sent, payable to "Princeton Interfaith Council," to Mrs. Floyd J. Campbell, treasurer, 105 Leigh Avenue, Princeton, or given to the individual churches for transmission to Mrs. Campbell.

Officers of the PIC executive committee include Rev. William Kirby, chaplain on the Wesley-Westminster Foundation at Princeton University; president; Rev. Robert L. Cope of the Unitarian Church, vice - president; Mrs. Robert Westover of Christ Congregation, recording secretary.

PIC To Meet

Delegates to Princeton Interfaith Council will meet at 8:15 p.m. next Thursday, February 1, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The request for the special meeting was made by the Rev. Edward Smith, president of the Princeton Pastors' Association, according to the Rev. Kenneth Dannenhauer, corresponding secretary. The PIC executive committee meets monthly on the second Monday, serving to coordinate the three PIC committees: Christian education, community concerns and worship.

ter's president at its founding in 1950, will recall the pre-1958 history of the Jewish Community of Princeton. Bringing the story up to date will be Leonard Hymerling.

president in 1958-59 Jess Epstein, president when the first Sabbath was observed in the building, will also participate.

Mrs. Norman Denard, Women's Division president when the building opened, will make the introductions. The program concludes with an informal sing - along, featuring several former members of the choir.

A souvenir booklet is in preparation. Center presidents are listed as well as the rabbis who have served, starting with Rabbi Joseph Gelberman who led the first service at the 435 Nassau Street 15 years ago, and his successors: Rabbi Aron N. H. Krauss, Everett Gendler, Reeve Breiner and Hershel Matt.

When you buy a new house, your lender for your mortgage will have his own appraiser, or one of his choice, determine the market value of the house which you are interested in. This is a safeguard for the lender and a double check for you. You will naturally want to buy a house with a future, so it is always worthwhile to have an independent opinion about the house in question. The appraiser will judge the house in terms of its location, condition, and depreciation possibilities.

Trust the judgment of those at WALTER B. HOWE INC., 1 Palmer Sq. (924-0095), Pennington (737-3301) and W. Windsor (799-1100). Open 9-9. Sat. 9-5. Sun. 1-5. All types of real estate available. Friendly staff to assist you. Up to date listings.

What is cholesterol? It is an alcoholic fat which is present in many foods especially butter, milk, meat and eggs. The body needs cholesterol to digest and synthesize vitamin D. Large amounts of cholesterol are known to cause arteriosclerosis. Polyunsaturated oils help reduce the amount of cholesterol in the blood stream and lessen the risk of too much cholesterol. This is why it is important for everyone to have a diet balanced in all necessary nutrients.

"Birthday Four-Oh" and its Impact on Women

The truth is, I am over 40. "You're kidding!" he said. "On my next birthday, I will be 43." In today's bifocal view, a man at 43 is considered to be at the height of his powers; a woman is considered overage. The speaker is Joan Goldstein, a Princetonian who is associate director of the Community Health Institute of New York.

"There's that magic moment! it centers around 40 — when your optician, your doctor decide that you are 'doing well for a person your age,'" she says.

Ms. Goldstein's topic, "The Impact of Aging on Women," drew a capacity crowd, squeezing nearly 60 women into The Woman's Place, 14½ Witherspoon Street, for a meeting of NOW. They sat on chairs, tables and the floor — and included four men in their midst. Most of the women were in the short side of 40.

"If you're age 30 or thereabouts," said Ms. Goldstein, whose age is obviously indefinite, "it's time to start an awareness of how to handle aging. The negative attitude that's prevalent reinforces already discriminatory patterns towards women. If a woman is not a sex object, wipe her out."

From the floor came the comment, "In my office there's a big party when some body hits Birthday Four Oh. There's the feeling, well, this is IT! I've seen my girl friends just deteriorate. It can even be at 30. They just let go."

"How subtle are the prejudicial attitudes towards aging?" Ms. Goldstein continued. "She's 35 and doesn't look it." In the United States, it's a young culture. It's groovy to be young.

Older women take abuse from the advertising media, the speaker said. "The older women are usually shown as dizzy dames or shrews and always definitely eccentric. None are beautiful in their maturity. Our society says they don't exist because they no longer have what they're expected to have. Well, what is a woman?"

There was a question, "Do men feel the same way about age?"

"When my husband turned 40, someone said, 'he was so very depressed I gave a big party and spent a lot of money!'"

Later Years. For women beyond the 40's, "it gets worse," Ms. Goldstein commented. "Generally women are forced out of the labor market. This was a so-called 'kindness' to older people that came about during the Depression, although it was actually to make room for the younger person."

"Retirement actually forces them into poverty, seclusion, lack of contact and loss of meaning to their lives. This is painful for both sexes. But most men over 65 are living with a wife, because men tend to marry women younger. We have to start changing that. While most women over 65 are widows and living alone, I think we have to go beyond leaving responsibility in the hands of public officials. We have to find a ternate ways. We have to think about our whole life span and function as a planning agency. The state isn't going to do it, or us."

"IT'S GROOVY TO BE YOUNG," Joan Goldstein said recently about "The Impact of Aging Upon Women," and any Nassau Street girl-watcher will agree.

As a woman, you were paid less, therefore you get less social security. They're living in little rooms, cooking off hot plates. They don't see anybody for days. Their children have moved to the suburbs. They don't eat properly. Most are suffering from some chronic ailment. They need regular exercise.

Ms. Goldstein related a visit with SASS (Seniors for Adequate Social Security) in New York City. The director had a hard time getting them to center on the subject of the meeting, she said. "They had been so lonely. They were full of social small talk. A trip to the grocery, a meeting of SASS, these are events in their lives."

She said that the isolation of the elderly — their poverty and consequent malnutrition have a devastating effect. The loneliness in itself causes mental illness, the malnutrition contributes to the symptoms of senility. A member of SASS remarked to her that public officials "treat us, a though we are not persons."

Sent 15, a woman in the audience said, "can be an emotional problem, but actually physicians are not very interested. They are disoriented, ego oriented."

Is there something that we could do to help people in aging? What can we do in our own community? At what age are we an older person? In the thoughtful discussion that followed, Ms. Goldstein offered guidelines.

"All of us will arrive at the point of old age, and should think now of how we can change these social and economic patterns."

News Of The THEATRES

"ELECTRA"

In New Translation. Euripides' "Electra" in a translation by a Princeton University student, will be presented by Theatre Intime as its first production of the spring season.

It will open in Murray Theatre on the University campus Thursday, February 15 and will play that Friday and Saturday and again Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 22, 23 and 24.

Ruth Rehm, the translator, is participating in an independent program of Greek translation at Princeton.

"The aim of my translation," he says, "is to present a version which, although close to the original Greek in meaning, is also true to the demands of the stage and spoken dialogue. We too often forget that Greek tragedy can only come to life on the stage."

"Electra" describes the murder of Clytemnestra by her children, Orestes and Electra. Euripides brings the myth down to earth and presents characters which many critics believe are like contemporary men and women.

Intime's production will have choreography by Lucy Graves, combined with original electronic music composed by John Selick.

"MURDER IN CATHEDRAL"

At Trinity Church, Ernest Gordon, Dean of the Princeton University Chapel, will play the part of Archbishop Thomas Becket in the Trinity Church production of T.S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral" to be given in mid-February.

The contemporary classic will be presented in the nave of Trinity on Friday and Saturday, February 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m. A dress rehearsal preview will be held Thursday, February 16 at 8 p.m.

For all performances, playgoers are asked to arrive early because there will be no reserved seats. The Thursday preview will be free of charge, but a $2 donation (students $1), will be received at the door on Friday and Saturday.

The director of "Murder in the Cathedral" will be Greenville Caylor, former resident of Princeton and graduate of the University. He is directing the play as his Master's Project as a candidate for the Master of Fine Arts degree at Sarah Lawrence College.

Others in the cast besides Dean Gordon, are Joseph Harrison, Brent Cuffin, Robert Miller, John D. McClean, Steve McConnell, Roy Freedle, Michael Stevens, John Masterman, Carol Allen, Ellen Armstrong, Marion Bonaventura, Cla. Chester, Verna Fishman, Ruth Gibson, Elizabeth Gould and Virginia Layvine.

In the production staff are Mary Ann Jensen, stage manager, who directs Princeton University's Theatre Collection, William Dorman Jr., who has designed the sets, Stephen Seaman, junior at the University, in charge of lighting design, Mr. Caylor, Mrs. James McIntyre, Julie Stahlman, Mrs. Michael Stevens, Mrs. Peter Cook and Mrs. Ernest Gordon, design and execution of costumes.

"The Tooth of Crime," will return to the McCarter Theatre Company in a completely different role, that of the young lover Ferdinand in William Shakespeare's "The Tempest," scheduled to open March 1. Metcalf, whose performance as Crow won praise from major critics, including Clive Barnes of the New York Times, switches from villainous rock star to Shakespearean lover in one jump.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, 26-year-old Metcalf received his theatre training, he says, "in Milwaukee. Ann Arbor and in a lot of high schools while on the road." His experience in Milwaukee was with the famed Milwaukee Repertory Company, where his roles included that of Orlando in Shakespeare's "As You Like It."

Also in the "Tempest" cast from "The Tooth of Crime" is Clarence Felder, who will be remembered as the jive talking disc jockey, Galactic Jack. For "The Tempest" he assumes the role of Caliban. Princeton actor Karl Light will be Antonio, Al Corbin, Alonso, and Dwight Schultz in the featured role of Ariel.

New to McCarter's Company are Edward Zang as Trinculo, I.M. Hudson as Stephano, Francesca Norsa as Miranda and Andrew Bloch as the Boatman and Harpy.

Music for "The Tempest" has been adapted from Mozart's "The Magic Flute" by composer Patsy Rogers. Lighting is by John McLain, set design by David Jenkins, costumes by Elizabeth Covey.

"TWELFTH NIGHT"

In Bucks County, five performances of Shakespeare's comedy "Twelfth Night" will be given this weekend and early in February at the Bucks County Playhouse, in New Hope, Pa. Milton Lyon, well-known to Princeton audiences, is directing.

"Twelfth Night" will be given on Thursday at 7:30 p.m., and Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Matinees have been scheduled for Saturday, February 3 at 2 p.m., and Saturday, February 10 at 5:30 p.m.

ROYCHOIR TO SING

At Trinity Church Choral Evensong will be sung by the Columbus Boy Choir at Trinity Church this Sunday at 7:30 p.m., as a part of the year long series of concerts and musical services presented by Trinity and All Saints' Churches.

Under the direction of Robert Hobbs, associate director of the Columbus Boy Choir, and former organist and choir master of Trinity Church, the choir, known as "America's Singing Boys", will sing works by Vaughan Williams, Faure, and Howells.

This choral service will be the last public appearance of the choir before its extended nation wide tour in the late winter and early spring. The choir will tour Russia, Austria and various other European nations during the early summer.

The Boy Choir, with its choir school at Rosedale Road in Princeton, has been considered the foremost American boy choir for several decades, and is known throughout the world through its many tours, appearances with orchestras and many recordings. The regular conductor of the choir is Donald Hanson.

The boys of the choir will be joined by tenors and basses from the Trinity Church Choir of Men and Boys for this Choral Evensong. The public is cordially invited to attend.

PRINCE

The Valachi Papers (now playing). One Mafia boss knocks over another in a constant grab at power while the numerous henchmen of both sides get their's in the process. Blood, brutality, sadism, guns, knives, mobsters, big deals, famous big meetings pile on and on in this film version of Peter Maas' sensation creating book.

Whereas the Maas book used Joseph Valachi's life as the time gauge to give order to the old newspaper stories of the Cosa Nostra, the screen play tries to put flesh and blood on the character. Charles Bronson plays Valachi, who was first a mob driver, then a bodyguard and ultimately a small time operator who did "favors."

He occasionally comes up with facial expressions, but nothing more in the way of characterization.

PLAYHOUSE

The New Centurians (now playing) This is a portrait of the daily routine of the Los Angeles policemen, and includes both the lighter moments and those of crisis. The emphasis is on their dedication, with restraint carried to inhuman degrees in all variety of highly tense situations. Too much is just too hard to believe and certainly too hard for a policeman to have to live up to.

George C. Scott is the older super-cop, Kilvinsky, a member of the force for about 20 years. One of his points is Ray (played by Stacy Keach), a prelaw student who has joined the force in order to support his family until he gets his law degree. Their separate and intertwining lives, in and out of uniform, serve as the plot.

Scott's role lacks the big moments he is usually given but the determinism he fervently presents remains a consistently appalling image. Keach does well, limited by the script, which is adapted from the Joseph Wambaugh best selling novel. Richard Fleischer directed.

GARDEN

Travels With My Aunt (Now playing) is based upon Graham Greene's beguiling best seller. The theme is the confrontation of exponents of two life styles. Aunt Augusta who belongs to the school that "some of us get out of life exactly what others are stupid enough to put into it," and her nephew Henry, a bank teller who sincerely believes one gets out of life what one puts into it.

This sets the stage for a series of elegantly bizarre adventures in which Henry loosens up a bit. Maggie Smith, as Aunt Augusta, can do marvels with an arched eyebrow or a fox fur slung over her skinny figure, and she's superb in the all-too-brief flashbacks to the 1930s. Not most of the time she is an old lady and somewhat miscast as a senior citizen. Ves McCowen manages a nice box dim presence as Henry.

IT'S NEW To Us

IT'S A PASTEL SPRING

At Ladybug, "Lots of gab" means these days the lightweight fabrics with a gabardine look. Ladybug at 16 Nassau has them in pastel shades, lightly tailored into the classic look.

Blending yellows, Ladybug shows a pin-striped wide-lapel jacket paired with matching cuffed pants, to wear with a yellow sweater in a deeper tone and a garden print blouse.

Short-waisted battle jackets can be matched with a short, flared skirt or with pants. Choose a soft blue. Or a single-button jacket in a tight green-and-white check, to match or coordinate with a flirty skirt or cuffed pants.

In a warm rose, collarless knit jackets with tie belts. Other colors, too. Ladybug also likes the Norfolk jacket fit, and offers a sleek version in a beautiful green-and-white plaid—the green is the color of early spring grass. Pants to match if you like.

Among the pants to match or contrast with your favorite top is a good selection in solid pastel tones. Pretty yellows, blues, greens. Also, if you're slim and lithe, imaginative geometric patterns in such as pale brown squares offset by yellow and white. Cut wide and cuffed, and to be worn, perhaps, with classic tailored blouse the color of cream and a pert vest of beige leather strips edged in white embroidery.

Ladybug's shirts are classic cuts in interesting fabrics. Multicolored diamonds, each appear on one. Another features vertical of flower prints, bordered in deep blue and one a different pastel shade, separated by wide white stripes. Both a tailored, long-sleeved, (and not too full in the sleeve).

We're so accustomed to prints that it is a pleasure to see a genuine weave. Ladybug shows several, among them a skillful geometric in small angular lines of red and white. Another version is navy and white. Both in wearable, tailored shirts.

The shirt variety includes a narrow brown-and-white pin stripe with the fabric overlaid in white here and there—an interesting fantasy—white eyelet in a demure design; two-tone blue-and-white in a Delft-like print; and some florals—all so pretty.

Ladybug's sweaters are versatile. The summer look in a white orlon acrylic which introduces color striping well below the shoulders: blues, greens, a touch of rose. The sweater sets are downright lovely: a sleeveless white vest in ribbing, trimmed in blue at the edges and the waist, is paired with a pullover with three-quarters sleeves. The pullover is striped here and there in blue. Pure wool and washable, if you follow the instructions.

Everything's very spring like, and manages somehow to offer three or more outfits, just by blending tops and bottoms.

NEWPORT MARINE SCENES

At Schuster, Inc., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schuster have moved their commissary items from the street level shop they had for so many years at 20 Nassau to bright and spacious room upstairs at 12 Nassau, just a turn around the corner for the entrance on Bank Street. We found here a series of old paintings of yachts off Newport, R.I.

The paintings are displayed in a sunny room furnished simply but elegantly with few antiques accented by a black-and-white checkerboard floor, a pair of red velvet colored loveseats and fascinating old paintings on the walls. "We have room for a gallery now," Mrs. Schuster told us with much pleasure.

The Newport marines include one of a race between the Vanderbilt-owned "Coronet," the "Dauntless" and the "Vista." It is unsigned, and is dated circa 1860. The others are in the same vein, and much appreciated by Mrs. Schuster, who used to sail in the Mackinaw Island races in Lake Michigan.

On another tack, so to speak, are two H.L. Hildebrand paintings: a nude in a woodland setting; a young girl in a dancer's tutu. There's an oil of Venice in the moonlight, full of mysterious deep blues, and Lucien Powell watercolor of the Grand Canyon.

And two small, vivid still lifes fruits of the harvest painted by Pennsylvania artist J. F. Frances about a century ago. One includes Delaware grapes, a fruit that the Schusters have been trying to grow at home. They live in a 1737 house in Yardley, Pa., once owned by colonial horticulturalist Henry Moon, who, we were told, contributed his talents to Mt. Vernon for his friend, George Washington.

Schuster, Inc., has been in Princeton for about 15 years. It specializes in certain facets of the antiques business, such as colonial silver, jewelry, objects d'art. The Schusters appraise estates, often serving clients who wish to dispose of something that the children have said they don't want. Or, sometimes Great Aunt Sara's mahogany table pays a substantial portion of a grand niece or nephew's college costs.

"We do have one rule," Mrs. Schuster told us, in her pleasant way. "We never sell in Princeton what we have bought in Princeton. This is out of consideration for our client. After all, you'd rather come across someone wearing the ruby earrings you had decided to sell."

The Schusters have clients in London, New York, South America, and are essentially brokers buying for you or selling for you. When a client has something to sell, it is brought to the Schusters or if it's a big old thing, they will make an appointment to go to the client's house.

There's a handsome room in the new offices that looks like a den at home: a big comfortable leather sofa, some paintings, a few objects d'art, offset by filtered sunlight on "Heritage" red walls. This is the conference room for discussions and appraisals.

Both of the Schusters are graduates of the Gemological Institute of America. They can tell things about a client's rings and necklaces that she never knew. It's a fascinating science.

Not much of the early silver is in evidence; most is kept in the vault. Mrs. Schuster herself is captured by the misbegotten of colonial silver. "It's very exciting," she says. "There are very definite styles—Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, the Hudson Valley—all had their particular ways."

Schuster Inc., is now doing more with rare books. The most recent adventure concerned a signed book from the collection Robert L. Stevens had in his Edinburgh, Scotland house. The house is being restored with as much of the original furnishings as possible. Mrs. Schuster told us, so the book was a real find. She called Edinburgh to try to find the restoration group. "And I couldn't understand a word they said!" she laughed. "I had such a time, but I found them."

The new shop is open from 10 to 1:30 Wednesday through Saturday. Or by appointment.

Lond Use Meeting in West Windsor

The West Windsor Democratic Club has invited the community to a special meeting on "Land Use Controls to Preserve Open Space and Farm Land," at 8:30 p.m. Monday, in the Christian Education Building, First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck.

Hugh Borton, new president of the club noted that West Windsor has areas that are considered prime agricultural land and that it is at the same time under pressure for development. Borton added, "We would like to get as much information about the possibilities of preserving farm land, how much it would cost and what methods can be used to acquire it, especially since the Township is revising its Master Plan now. This kind of information could be good input."

The speaker for the program is B. D. Chavoshian, Acting Chairman of the Department of Environmental Resources at Rutgers University's College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. He is currently working on the concept of "developmental rights," a new proposal for protecting landowners' investments while preserving open land for agricultural uses.

CLUB News

Great Dragon and Long Serpent are not names from some fairy tale, although they might be. They are instead names of great Viking Ships left from that extraordinary time when the Vikings ruled the sea. Today you can see remnants of these graceful ships in Viking Ship Hall in Oslo, Norway. One ship was used as a burial sepulcher for a lady of noble family. Why not visit Norway where the romantic past is only equalled by the warm and interesting present.

Whether it is Norway or another place of interest that you plan to visit, make your travel plans through WELCOME ABOARD, 29 Witherspoon Street. ### ART In Princeton

COMMERCIAL ART
At Gallery 100. There are still artists who make the distinction between fine and commercial art in terms of artistic value. A work with a literary or storytelling aspect is often considered less important than one which exists for more ephemeral reasons.

However, if art is to be judged by the level of communication between the artist and the viewer, to be evaluated by mastery over medium and tool, and to be valued by the ability to produce a desired reaction or influence in the viewer, then the world of commercial art, including the cartoon as well as the illustration, must be considered as an artistic form in its own right.

If there are any doubts about how much multifaceted enjoyment there can be in a collection of drawings, cartoons and paintings created for mass media, all questions can be cleared up at the current exhibition at Gallery 100.

A collection of work by nationally known illustrators and cartoonists who live in the Princeton area project a wide range of taste, style, humor and technique.
Marvin Friedman, John

Hindmurgarth, Saul Lambert, Henry Martin & Michael Romano, Arnold Roth and Robert J. van de Velde are local artists with international reputations.

Their work has appeared in Life, Sport Illustrated, Holiday, Playboy, Punch and many other publications, as well as gracing the covers of record albums, books and any other place where a well-executed work of art is needed.

Individual cartoons, story illustrations, political commentary, portraits and caricatures of the famous are among the many subjects displayed. All a piece of life are material for the book, the poster, the phone, and a sign appear in the how in various forms of technique and talent.

All the elements that are his day in a sophisticated and visually successful gallery display exist in profusion in this happy collection.

At The Eye For Art: The Eye For Art features a mixed media collection of graphic ceramics, watercolor and antique Tibetan religious art. The watercolor or ink kitchen painting. Representational groupings of red block and kitchen implements are patterned pleasantly for brightly colored starkly simple still life.

Acrylics by Graham Smithy rely on geometric surface construction created by a rich impasto. Raised areas and textural effect contrast with well-constructed flat forms. Intricate colored flat backgrounds serve as the relief patterns to interact effectively.

Nature graphics by Brigitte Conrad display this artist's great sensitivity to the beautiful shapes and patterns to be discovered in plant forms. Muted, rich colors and fine technique combine with an original and sensitive approach to the subject.

Prints by Trudy Gluckberg are also among the work displayed and include a group of softly toned, subtly colored studies of the human form and of life.

At Stuart School Galleries, Graphic and painting by Elizabeth Monath together with sculpture by Elizabeth Calhoun are on display in the gallery at the Stuart School. Mrs. Monath has explored the many aspects of the print.

working with wood as her primary medium, and exhibits the results of prints that are experimental as well as those that are more conventional in their approach.

Much of her work deals with the human figure but there are some nature forms and also pure design. Included in this display is the original work by this artist that was included in a UNICEF calendar.

Sculpture by Elizabeth Calhoun is created in her own foundry in Pennsylvania. Ms. Calhoun works in a variety of metals including bronze and aluminum. She creates pleasing simplified forms whose unobtrusive silhouettes do not conflict with the surface effects and intrinsic qualities of her metals.

At McCarter Theatre. In all juried shows the taste of the judges contributes as much to the effect of the exhibit as the quality of the offerings. In the current exhibition judges Betty Parsons and Thomas George have allowed their personal tastes to produce a show that, while competent in its content, seems to lack balance.

The dominating characteristics are largeness and darkness, with many pieces that are so similar in style that they confuse the viewer and create a sense of sameness. Although the approach ranges from realism to minimal art, within this wide difference, there is lacking a range of color and techniques. Many of the works, while competent appear to be technical exercises or student paintings which grew from a common teacher or situation causing the usually individual approaches of the painters to merge into a homogenized effect.

At The AC Gallery. Paintings and drawings of Maxima by James Harrison and Maxima Cannon are featured in this Kingston Gallery. Ms. Cannon paints abstracted landscapes focusing on color and texture. Mr. Harrison studies Spanish village life in pen, ink and wash. Both artists have exhibited throughout Europe. Ms. Cannon has received several awards abroad and in this country.

THREE WIN AWARDS

In PAA Juried Show. Two teachers and the wife of a Princeton University staff member have won the top prizes in the Third Annual Juried Painting Exhibition sponsored by the Princeton Art Association. The complete exhibition of 39 works is now on view at McCarter Theatre through February 5. Taking top honors was "Waterfall" by Saboko Okabayashi. Receiving second prize was "Pinos" by Thomas Sharp. Bonnie C. Randall was third with her "Weeds with Poppy Pods". More than 110 artists entered this year's exhibition.

The top prize winner came to Princeton from Tokyo only four years ago. She started in oils and switched to her favorite medium, acrylics, because as she put it "acrylics are more modern, more interesting".

She currently produces about one finished work a week and has been entered in only three shows previously — twice in the Jaycee exhibition at the YMCA where she took "honorable mention" on both occasions and once before at the Art Association.

Her first numbered award comes soon after the birth of her first child who is two months old. Mrs. Okabayashi's husband is a staff member in the Plasma Physics Lab at Princeton.

Second prize winner Thomas Sharp who teaches Spanish at Lawrenceville School is a relative newcomer to art and this area. He has been painting only two years and moved to Lawrenceville this fall from Connecticut.

His winning entry, "Pinos" has been honored before taking "best in show" in the New Haven Paint Club Show. Mr. Sharp says painting occupies a very special niche in his life. "It's more than a hobby but it's not my livelihood," he said. He has never studied art and works in acrylics only. He has produced about 20 paintings in his budding career.

Art teacher Bonnie C. Randall, a native of Trenton, has painted since childhood. Her "Weeds with Poppy Pods" reflects her affinity for nature.

She said she particularly enjoys weeds "because of the lines they form". She also uses animals as many of her subjects. Mrs. Randall has shown throughout the area, but this is her first winning entry in a major show.

The Princeton Art Association will follow this exhibition with a Glumpe Behind the Curtain, a study of costume and stage design which opens at the McCarter February 7.

4 TO EXHIBIT WORKS

At Studio on the Canal. Wallace X. Conway Sr., Rex Connelley, Alexander Lee, Hugh Lee Smith, and David Ward. Studio on the Canal instructors are exhibiting oil paintings, water colors, prints and ceramics at the studio Sunday through February 11.

The show is open to the public on weekends 2 p.m., and by appointment week days.

Nice Switch: Public Library Wants Your Books

That duplicate book you got for Christmas would be very happy on the shelf of the Princeton Public Library.

Somewhat with tongue in cheek ("this is NOT the answer to our book problem!") Princeton's librarian, Robert Staples, has issued a plea for copies of nine books currently on the best seller list at the library's check out counter.

The list:

"Virginia Woolf," Quentin Bell

"Women and Madness," Phyllis Chesler

"Ficciones," Jorge Luis Borges

"The Odyssey," E. V. Rieu

"The Best and the Brightest," David Halberstam

"For OK, You're OK," Thomas Harris

"Eleanor and Franklin," Joseph Lash

"Immence and Power," Rollo May

"Report from Engine Company #82," Dennis Smith

"We know we're buying the right kind of current stuff," Mr. Staples explains, "we know the Halberstam and the Fitzgerald would go well, for example, but we only had enough money for one copy each."

The library's budget, already presented to Borough Council and Township Committee, asks for $50,000 for books. Originally, library trustees had blocked in $10,000 for books. But when the library held a public hearing back in November on its projected budget, there was "overwhelming concern" on the part of the public to increase it by $10,000.

So the trustees did. Last year, Mr. Staples observes without editorial comment, that the library got $128 more from the town for books than the year before.

What book, does the library want to buy?

"We're building up our non-fiction subject areas," Mr. Staples explains, "in sects, for example. It's not only school children who take out books on these books, it's adults who are enrolled in some course. If only one or two people check out a book on insects, we might well have nothing left."

Books like the one of course date quickly. A 1960 book on science isn't much help.

Travel books must be updated, too. Mr. Staples tries to keep the latest Fielding guides for travelers — "the old ones are inaccurate."

Also, if you've been to either Washington or New York thumbing Pommers' "on $10 a day," you might contribute your copy to the library and receive the librarian's gratitude.

Besides these nine, what are readers reading? "The Persian Boy," Mary Renault's latest adventure back in time, "5,000 Nights at the Opera," by Rudolf Bing.

Mr. Staples, a wide-ranging reader himself recommends warmly the Virginia Woolf biography, even for people who don't read Virginia Woolf. He gives a nod to Rollo May as a "high level popularizer" who doesn't run his subject.

So if you've got an extra copy of Rollo May, take it like coal to Newcastle, to the public library. But please.

"Don't rummage in the attic for old books!" A dumping of ancient best sellers is a Staples nightmare.

REORGANIZATION HELD

For Recreation Board. All eight members of the Joint Recreation Board, including three new members, were present last week when areas of interest were assigned each member.

The new members are Mrs. Merrill Dean and Douglas Watson Jr. from the Borough and Dr. Benjamin Silverman of the Township. Mr. Watson replaces William Cirillo of the Borough who had to resign when he moved to the Township; Mrs. Dean replaces John Conway, who resigned, and Dr. Silverman replaces Sanford Reynolds, who had to resign when he was appointed to fill a vacancy on Township Committee.

William Armiger of the Borough was named chairman of the Recreation Board, while Mrs. Miles Dumont, a Township resident, was named vice chairman. R. Donald Barr was reappointed executive director of the Princeton Recreation Department. Jack Roberts remains as his assistant.

The remaining board members are Mrs. Judy Thompson and Robert Smoller of the Township and Wilbert Brooks of the Borough. Mrs. Carolyn Edelman of the Joint Commission on Aging was appointed liaison to the board, a step recommended by Mr. Barr since the board, he said, will be working so closely with the Commission on Aging as it prepares new programs for the elderly.

Mrs. Barbara Smoyer of Committee and Martin Lombardi of Council will remain as liaison for the two governing bodies.

Areas Assigned. Mrs. Dumont and Mrs. Dean will both be concerned with special events and personnel and public relations for the board.

Other members and their areas of interest: Mr. Watson youth programs; Dr. Silverman, land acquisition and capital budgets; Mrs. Thompson, programs for the elderly; Mr. Smoller, building grounds and maintenance; Mr. Brooks, adult recreation; Mr. Armiger, finance and inventory.

Operating Expenses Met. Income for 1972 from the swimming pools, paddle tennis and tennis courts plus miscellaneous items totaled $60,506, an increase of about $200 over Phil's income of $60,291.

Which means, commented Mr. Barr, "for six years in a row we have been able to meet our moral commitment to Council and Committee to have these facilities pay for themselves."

When the pool and tennis complex was built six years ago, the Recreation Board told the governing bodies, who supplied the capital funding, that it would set up a system of fees that would make the pools and courts self-supporting as far as operating expenses were concerned. After observing that the board has hit it virtually on the nose every year. Mr. Barr added "I think it's a credit to the board."

Mr. Barr reported a heavy response to a girls gymnastics program which the board will run Saturday afternoons from 2 to 4 at the PHS gym under the direction of Carol Sinkler and two assistants. Ninety-two have applied, he said.

Some 220 piddle tennis players are keeping the four platform tennis courts at Community Park from getting dusty. Three leagues are also active according to Mr. Barr who reported usage of the courts was "up quite a bit."

TWO ARE FINED

Each was found not guilty of countercharges of assault.

James L. Caldwell Jr. of Trenton was held over for action by a Grand Jury. He has been charged by Borough police for breaking and entering and larceny of a television set from a Hodge Road home.

COFFEE HOUSE TO START
At Youth Center. The Princeton Youth Center will initiate its first monthly "Coffee House", this Friday, at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

There will be poetry readings, an African dance exhibition and discussion of issues relevant to those in the Princeton community. The "Coffee House" programs will serve as forums for expression, discussion and hopefully to bring different facets of the Princeton community together.

If anyone has some material to share, contact Terry Siegle at the Youth Center, 102 Witherspoon Street, (924-0966).

SIGN UP NOW!

Some Adult Courses Closed. Ten of the 61 courses offered by the Princeton Adult School for the winter term beginning January 30 have been closed to further registration, according to Mrs. Ann Westover, Administrative Secretary of the Adult School. Many are still open," she added, "and students may register for them through the mail."

Courses that have been closed are: Chinese Brush Painting, Fix it, Practical Picture Framing, Chinese Cooking, two classes of tennis for beginners, Ceramic, Hand spinning, and English II and English III for speakers of other languages.

The Comedy of Murder, a course in English and American detective fiction, had room for one more student last week-end, and will probably be closed by the middle of this week. Others in this same situation were First Steps in Art, A Sampler of Crafts, and Bobbin Lace, a five-week "mini" course.

Students who want to sign up for any of the other courses listed in the brochure can probably be accommodated, according to Mrs. Westover. She suggests that interested students call the Adult School office to determine whether there is room before sending registration forms and checks. The number is 921-0990, and the office will be open on weekdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. The mailing address of the Princeton Adult School is P.O. Box 701, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

TO HOLD ESSAY CONTEST

On High School Improvement. An essay contest (500 to 800 words) will be held this week for all Princeton High School students on the topic, "How do you feel the new school board could improve the high school?"

Essays can be turned in at Flight Two on Nassau Street, the Youth Center or the English list office at PHS. Deadline is Thursday, January 25. There will be three prize awards of $30, $20 and $10. Barrie Peterson of Flight Two, Len Brown of the Youth Center and Bill Cooke at the high school will be the judges. The winning essays will be released to the press. "We want the adult voters to be able to see what high school students feel is important in the election," stated Mr. Peterson.

NEW CHAIRMAN NAMED

By Friends of Environment. Samuel W. Lambert III has been elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Friends of the Princeton Environment. He replaces C. Mc Kim Norton, who has been serving as Temporary Chairman since James C. Sayen resigned from the Board to assume the chairmanship of the Princeton Borough Environmental Commission.

Mr. Lambert, who has long been interested in environmental affairs, has served as secretary-treasurer of the Marquand Park Foundation and as a trustee and member of the Executive Committee of the Family Service Agency. Several years ago, he was active in the establishment of the Whole Earth Center.

Mr. Norton now becomes Vice Chairman of the Friends of the Princeton Environment. Former President of the Regional Plan Association of New York, he now serves as its counsel. The Friends have also elected Mrs. Edwin C. Butler as Secretary of the Board.

The Friends of the Princeton Environment was established two years ago as a political action group seeking to affect legislative matters dealing with the environment. Approximately 800 Princeton area residents are members.

FILM ON EGYPT PLANNED

By Public Library. "Ancient Egypt," a 50 minute documentary, color film, will be presented at the Public Library on Tuesday, February 6 at 8 p.m.

The film explores the pyramids, magnificent temples and treasure-filled tombs of the pharaohs. The film also traces the development of "Egyptology" starting with Napoleon Bonaparte's invasion of Egypt in 1798, when he brought with him scholars to study aspects of the country.

An assistant editor and an Egyptologist, closely associated with the making of the film, will exchange informal comment in person before the screening.

Miss Joan McQuiston, a former assistant editor, researcher and foreign correspondent with "Time Life," Miss McQuiston helped write the narration and direct the film as the culmination of a project of Project Argument on Ancient Egyptian civilization.

Joining her will be Dr. John Wilson, famed Egyptologist, a thor and former Head of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago. The free program is open to the public.

$40,000 Sought to Fund Summer Job Program

John Bailey has come home to Princeton and wants to improve what he sees here. He wants to do something for the young people of Princeton who are disadvantaged. To do so he has proposed a Princeton Summer Employment project which will provide summer jobs and experience for Princeton area youths who—white or black—are disadvantaged.

More important than just acquiring specific skills, John hopes through his program, which will include a day of social and educational enrichment, to challenge their thinking, to establish goals and values the youth can identify with and to make them realize the importance of staying in school.

When someone goes back to Princeton High School in September, I want him to "break his butt" instead of being as indifferent as I was, says John.

$35-40,000 Needed. First off, he needs money—some $35 to 40,000 John estimates. I plan made a commitment. I plan to go to all lengths to get this funding. Now I'm looking for a commitment from the community.

John, 23, became involved when he came home to Princeton about three months ago from a tryout with the Virginia Squires in the American Basketball Association—just when the racial flareup between white and black students took place at the high school.

He grew up here and attended Valley Road School and Princeton High School. He had been active in working with youth, as a teacher's assistant in remedial courses for high school dropouts and working in neighborhood youth corps in Staten Island, while attending Wagner College.

Disturbed by the high school confrontation, John talked with many parents and kids. Everybody was saying, "What are we going to do with the kids? The kids weren't being motivated and it's not a very healthy situation if they can't be," commented John.

Hopes For 100 Kids. His program is designed, basically, to get the kids off the street in the summer, teach them a skill and motivate them. He hopes to get anywhere from 50 to 100 to sign up.

Each would work four days a week from 9 to 3 and be paid $1.50 an hour. A fifth day would be used for enrichment—lectures, films, touring colleges, etc. The program would run from June 25 through August 31. The $45 each would reserve each week will be paid by the program itself, not by an employer.

Paid staff members would include a director, two supervisors, two secretaries, crew chiefs and a bookkeeper. Staff members would be 19 or older, preferably have a disadvantaged background with some educational and counseling experience in dealing with youth.

Those eligible to join the program would be from the Princeton area between 13 and 17 with their parents' permission. The basic philosophy of John's program is "to broaden horizons and helpfully enhance the lives of the socially and economically disadvantaged by providing experiences in occupations, education and life."

Support From Fuller. So far, the only firm commitment of support that he has received has come from Chief Michael Carnevale of the Borough Police, John reported. He added that he has talked with officials of the YMCA, Jaycees, PTA and Joseph Moore, assistant dean of students at Princeton University, but all are hesitating, he said, "waiting to see if I'm just another young man talking."

"One of the biggest barriers to overcome in a program like this," observed Chief Carnevale, "is people do not want to believe there are any socially deprived youngsters in Princeton—and there are."

"Here we finally have someone that can relate with disadvantaged youths, someone who wants to work with the kids. If it can reduce the percentage of assaults and muggings that just go on in the Borough alone, if it can avoid the kind of confrontation we had at the high school, then I think we have to look into this."

After pointing out that the value of property stolen in the Borough and Township in 1971 and '72 exceeded a quarter of a million dollars, Chief Carnevale said, "I'm not going to say if you employ certain people that figure will come down; I just want to put it in proportion: what someone is asking in funds and what can come out of a fraction of that money."

If he gets sufficient financial backing, John will next visit firms and merchants to try to get them to participate. "We're looking for basic experiences kids need," he said. "Understanding and responsibility. Help them to get skills. We're saying, 'Teach them what you know.' Help them use their hands for something other than fighting."

John has laid it out on the line. "I'm looking for commitments. I'm looking for funds. I'm looking for jobs. I think employers have a social obligation to the community. The basic interest now has to come from the community."

"If I don't get the funds," John shrugs, then I don't know if I'm dealing with racism or just that there are no funds available. I think it would give a lot of people something to think about; I know it will give me something to think about."

At the moment, the Princeton Summer Employment project has no office, although John says that the Dorothea House has been offered if the program gets off the ground.

In the meantime, any correspondence, inquiries and offers of moral and financial support can be directed to Mrs. Betty Bodine, Chief Carnevale's secretary.

BET
KNOW

Brought to you

By John Bernord

Here's one that's hard to believe . . . But, it's true . . . Two of the greatest pro basketball players of all-time, Bob Cousy and Bob Pettit FAILED to make their high school basketball teams . . . Both were cut from their squads in their high school days! It seems incredible, but it's been confirmed by the National Basketball Association. And it proves again that truth is sometimes stranger than fiction.

Has any basketball player ever scored all his team's points in one game? This amazing feat happened once in a high school game in Alabama. A player named Walter Garrett scored 97 points in one game a few seasons ago, and the final score in that game was 97-54!

Here's one for you howlers. Do you have any idea what the odds are against rolling a perfect 300 game? According to the American Bowling Congress, the odds against a 300 game, even by the best of bowlers, are 367,000 to 1. There have been almost 7 million games rolled in ABC tournaments over the years and only 19 perfect 300 games in all that time. That's where they get the odds of 367,000 to 1.

Did you ever wonder what would happen if your parents developed a chronic illness? It is a terrible thought, but our new $100,000 catastrophe accident and sickness insurance policy written without evidence of insurability would help.

SPORTS in Princeton

TIGERS TO FACE NAVY

After Midterm Break, ending an 11-day break for mid-term exams, Princeton's varsity basketball team will resume action this Saturday night, when it meets Navy at 8 p.m. in Jadwin Gym. The contest will be the last non-Ivy affair for the Tigers this season.

The Middies, who are playing around the .500 mark, will be looking for their first victory over Princeton since the 1961-62. The Tigers have won 11 straight in the series.

The following Tuesday night, January 30, the Orange and Black will find out whether it still has a strong shot at the Ivy title. Penn will be the opponent at 7 p.m. at the Palestra, not a place where the Tigers play their best basketball. They lost two there in December in the Quaker City Tournament.

A victory by Penn will virtually assure the Quakers of their fourth consecutive Ivy crown. None of their remaining games should pose much of a problem either home or away. Penn has lost only once, in league play to Princeton last year in Jadwin, in the last three years.

PHS FIVE CLIMBS

With Win Over Hamilton. Powered by its 61-55 victory over visiting Hamilton Friday, the Princeton High School basketball team has climbed back in the ratings of teams in the Delaware Valley area. PHS is currently in fifth place. The only Mercer County School higher is second-place Trenton High.

Ahead for Marvin Trotman's Little Tigers is a rematch here Friday afternoon with Edison—and a chance of revenge. Edison handed PHS its first loss of the season in December when it edged the Blue and White by a single point on its home court.

Twenty-eight fouls were whistled against PHS in that game.

compared to nine against Edison and the memories of that game still rankle Trotman. Game time is 3:45.

Tuesday, PHS will be at St. Anthony's and this Wednesday evening at 8:15 it was scheduled to oppose Notre Dame at 8:15 on the Irish' home court. Notre Dame lost to Trenton by one point on Sunday.

Home Record Intact. It looked for a moment that Princeton's record of never having lost at home this season might go down before Fred up Hamilton which had been on the short end of a 38-23 half-time score. But the game proved two things: PHS did not crack under the pressure-cooker atmosphere and Bobby King is one important cog in the PHS quintet.

The key play of the game came with about a minute and a half to go and PHS up, 53-51. As Tony Bailey was bringing the ball down court, Steve Alexander stole it cleanly and raced unopposed for what seemed like a sure two points.

Somehow, Bailey turned and caught up with Alexander just as he left the floor for the lay-up. Bailey slapped the ball hard against the backboard. Alexander came down and stared in disbelief, his hands above his head, that a foul had not been called. But referee John Manzak said no.

PHS retrieved the ball and King dropped a shot in from the corner. Instead of a tie, PHS was up by four. Hornet coach Charlie Ross and an irate Hamilton bench insisted that Bailey had trapped the ball against the board and Alexander should have been awarded the two points.

Played Their Game. "It should never have been that close," said Trotman after the game. "We fell apart and started playing their game. Fortunately, we didn't play it the whole time."

"Hamilton has a nice team, but we have a nice team, too," Trotman stated. As for the hectic finish, he added: "I don't know how many more of these I can take. I'm not getting any younger and my hair's grey now."

After jumping to a quick 10-4 lead four points each by Gil Spencer and Larry Miller, PHS let Hamilton score the next nine and get back in the game. In the second period, however, PHS played as fine a brand of ball as it has all season, passing the ball around with spectacular effectiveness under the basket.

Along the way, it outscored Hamilton 24 to 14. Half of those points—13—belonged to King. Any thoughts that PHS was going to run Hamilton, which had come into the game in second place behind Trenton, off the courts evaporated in a hurry, however, when King had time to sit out the third period on the bench after he committed his fourth personal early in the period. PHS just wasn't the same team.

In the third period a PHS could manage were five points by Leon Robinson and a basket by Mike Coda. King's replacement. King reentered the game in the fourth period but by now Hamilton, led by Ike Livingston and Tom Alexander, had the momentum. Both teams were pressing each other the length of the court. Tom Alexander's shot brought the Hornets within one, 52-51, but that was as close as Hamilton got. Bailey sank the first of a 1-and-1 foul.

HOPEWELL VALLEY NEXT

Here on Mat Thursday, The Princeton High School wrestling team if nothing else has been consistent this season in winning three, losing three and tying three.

Now all even with six dual meets to go, the chances for a winning season for the Little Tigers are iffy. Following last week's 40-18 setback to Franklin Township, which came on the heels of a 29-29 tie with Woodrow Wilson, coach Tom Murray said, "We're thin. We're hanging together on sheer determination."

His concern is centered around the loss of Wes McClain who has been sidelined with a dislocated collar bone. "I don't know if we'll ever get him back. If we don't, it'll hurt us," said Murray.

McClain wrestles either 177 or heavyweight and his possible loss is serious because PHS is weak in the upper weights this year. Several of its ties and losses have come this season when the Blue and White has built up what seemed to be a comfortable lead only to lose it in the final bouts.

Coming up is an important match here Thursday evening with the Bulldogs of Hopewell Valley High School, one of the top mat teams in the county this year and victor of the Lawrence Christmas Wrestling Tournament.

"If we wrestle our best, I think it will be close one way or the other," said Murray. Hopewell is led by B.M. Fritz and heavyweight Dennis Gentilian.

Peddle Saturday, Saturday afternoon, the Blue and White will travel to Highstown for a 1:30 match with Peddle. "If McClain is back, we have a shot at both of them," predicted Murray.

Against Franklin, four wrestlers accounted for all Princeton's points. Andy Foltyn won by default. Keith Holcombe pinned his man in the third period and Bob Zinsmeister and Angelo Arcaro each won decisions.

Holcombe looked real good. He's got it all together now," said Murray of his 131 pounder.

The most outstanding thing in the tie with Woodrow Wilson, stated Murray, was Jeff Drummond's pin in the 168 pound class. That, plus a decision by Arcaro, who was wrestling an opponent above his weight—a result of the weight changes in Pennsylvania and New Jersey not coinciding—enabled PHS to earn a tie.

The other notable event was the first blunder this year on Foltyn's record. Foltyn, who wrestles at 106 pounds and is the team captain, was wrestling up a weight at 115. He led 9-1 at the end of the first period and 13-5 after the sec-

"He didn't wrestle smartly at all," commented Murray. "You can't outmuscle someone when you're on the bottom. It was a good experience for him."

RPI NEXT OPPONENT

For Princeton Skaters, The hockey season is slipping away and if the Princeton hockey team is to at least equal the five victories it posted a year ago, a win this Saturday against Rensselaer Polytech is a must. Face-off is set for 2 p.m. in Baker Rink.

HPI is no better than 8-7 on the season through games last Saturday, thus giving the Tigers at least a fighting chance to improve their 2-10 record.

They resume Ivy play Wednesday, January 31, against Penn in Philadelphia, still seeking their first Ivy triumph. Penn is no better than 1-4 in Ivy play, but was 8-4 overall through last Saturday.

HUN FIVE SPLITS

Perkamen Here Friday. The Hun School basketball team, which last week defeated Pennington School, 59-45, in a Penn Jersey League contest and earlier lost, 69-60, to Lawrenceville, will next entertain Perkamen Friday afternoon at 3:30.

Hun will then take on a strong Rutgers Prep team Wednesday afternoon on the latter's home court. It was scheduled to play George School this Wednesday afternoon in Newtown, Pa.

The win over Pennington Friday left Hun in a solid position in the Northern Division of the Penn Jersey League where it is the defending champion. Hun is 2-0 in league play, while the other three teams in the division—Pennington, Perkamen and George School—have all lost two league games (overall, Hun is 10-2).

Hun made short work of Pennington (3-6), building a 25-13 halftime lead. Once again, Hun was led offensively by Bill Holmwood and Tony Trani who scored 17 and 14 points. Hun's other big gun, Kevin Tylus, cut out the game with a leg injury.

Hun coach Dave Leece singled out junior center Dave Clark, who scored six points, but more importantly excelled in rebounding for the Red and Black. Pennington's Jerry Fore led all scorers with 21 points.

"I don't know whether we were overconfident or whether the guys got tight when they realized who they were playing or what but we just didn't play well at all."

Hun is 0 for 5. Hun hasn't been able to defeat Lawrenceville since the series began five years ago. Off its record, it is favored to beat Lawrenceville this time.

Although Leece fears the loss was as much mental as anything else, Hun did little to win by shooting a poor 39 percent from the floor, 26 of 66.

After falling behind at one point in the second period, 31-21, the result of a five minute scoring drought, Hun managed to narrow the margin to 58-52 with three minutes to play on two long jumpers by Holmwood. But Mark Campbell, the Tories 6-4 forward, who led his team with 17 points, responded with a three point play to keep the home team in front.

Brain League's 12 points was tops in a balanced Hun attack. Holmwood added 10, Brent By-strzicki 9, Jean Loughlin and Trani 8 each, Jim Lynch 7 and Clark, 6.

SQUASH TITLE WON

By Virginia Minor, Miss Virginia Minor defeated Mrs. Jerome P. Webster Sunday, 15-8, 15-10, 17-18, 6-15, 15-10, to win the N.J. State Women's Squash Racquets Championship held at the Pretty Brook Tennis Club.

Both finalists are from Princeton and neither had ever won the title before. Miss Minor's victory marked the first time the title has been won by a New Jersey resident in four years.

Both players made almost no errors but Miss Minor's fine reverse corners and finesse on drop shots ultimately spelled the difference. She had reached the final round without losing a game in the tournament. Thirty six players participated.

In an 18-minute consolation final, Miss Lee Howard of Radcliff defeated Miss Simmy Stackman of the University of Pennsylvania, 15-10, 15-5, 15-6.

PRINCETONIANS TO PLAY

Howe Cup Team. Squash players from the Princeton area will dominate the New York Cup teams which will compete in New Haven this weekend against teams from Philadelphia and Boston. The New York team has won the championship the last four years in a row.

Playing for New York will be Mrs. John Gellner, Mrs. Newell Woodworth, Miss Paige Aaron, Mrs. Jerome P. Webster, Mrs. Peter Fisher, Mrs. W. Pepper Constable and her daughter, Keger, and of Princeton, Mrs. Mary Stewart of Rochester and Mrs. Lee Burling of Oswego, N.Y.

The Howe Cup is named for in honor of Mrs. William Howe of Nantucket, Mass., mother of Mrs. Constable, the only woman to have won the national five times and her twin sister, Mrs. Robert H. White of Rochester, N.Y.

Day basketball team, which must face two good teams and two very good teams over the next week.

Starting with Wardlaw in a game scheduled for this Wednesday afternoon at PDS, the Panthers will face Peddie at home on Friday at 7:30 p.m., play at Pennington next Wednesday, and then meet Lawrenceville at home at 8 p.m. next Friday, February 2.

It is not an enviable schedule, but coach Alan Taback says he welcomes the challenge. Now 9-2 on the season, after losing 79-60 to Morristown-Beard, PDS needs a minimum of a split to regain its momentum. It has lost two of its last three games. Other tough opponents still lie ahead such as Rutgers Prep and Newark Academy, which defeated Hun.

Peddie and Lawrenceville will provide the sternest tests for the Blue and White. At 10-1, with a center 6-8, Peddie will be especially hard to stop.

Playing three of the four games on its own court will help the Panthers, who had trouble adjusting to the small confines of the Morristown-Beard gym. Taback called the Panthers' effort "the poorest of the year," as among other problems their shooting percentage fell to 40 percent, 12 points below the season's norm. Taback also cited the lack of a "team defense."

It was a struggle for us just to stay close," said Taback. "They just blew by us in the third period," he said, referring to the victors' 22-8 scoring edge in that stanza.

Capt. Mark Ellsworth led the PDS scoring with 17, five points below his top Mercer County scoring average of 23.5. Ron Webster got 17 for the Panthers, but it was Jeff Stansbury, who scored 28 for Morristown-Beard, who took scoring honors.

A game Friday with MacArthur Military, which should have been less pressured than the rest of the schedule, was cancelled after a fire destroyed the Generals' gym.

Zoll Ends Coaching Career

Harry Zoll, baseball coach at Princeton High School since 1956, has decided to call it quits.

PHS athletic director Norman Van Arsdalen acknowledged that he has received a letter of resignation "for personal reasons." No successor has been named. Van Arsdalen said that the school will, as required, advertise that the position is open.

Zoll's finest year was 1960 when his team, led by pitcher Jack Lackey, defeated everyone around and won the Central New Jersey championship. The latter years, however, have been losing ones for him.

A player on the Ursinus team during his college days, Zoll had a low-key approach to the game. For him the main thing was the pure enjoyment of playing.

Many times in the spring when he would be guiding his team from the bench on a warm, sunny day, Zoll would look around and ask, "What more do you need?"

PDS SEXTET NOW 3-4

After Loss to Hill. Hill School wing Jim Reynolds scored the third goal of his hat-trick as the third period opened, and the Hill held on for 14 minutes to beat Princeton Day School at Pottstown, Pa., last Wednesday 4-3. The loss dropped the Panthers one game below the 500 mark at 3-4.

The Day School scored all its goals in the first 20 minutes of play, then watched this 3-1 lead evaporate as Hill came to life late in the second period.

PDS wing Mike Young scored the opener for the Panthers, on a double assist by cousins Carl and Bill Erdman. Three minutes later, mid way in the opening frame, Co-Captain Buz Woodworth backhanded a pass from John Mitnacht into the nets for a 2-0 lead.

Reynolds scored the first of his three goals with five minutes left, and the first period ended with PDS ahead 2-1. Mitnacht scored unassisted for PDS with five minutes gone in the second period, but Reynolds narrowed the margin to one goal two minutes later. With less than two minutes to go, Hill tied it 3-3.

Coach Harry Hylon Miller credited second string goal tender Dave Barach with "one great game." Barach made 28 saves, filling in for John Boyd, down with the flu.

The Panthers were scheduled to play Chatham High School this Wednesday, and meet the Hill in a return match next Wednesday.

LAWRENCEVILLE ROUTED

By PHS, 68-48. Combining the shooting of Tony Bailey and some overpowering rebounding, the Princeton High School basketball team destroyed visiting Lawrenceville School here Monday afternoon, 64-48.

Bailey, shooting more than he has in recent games, poured in 28 points, many of them long one-handed jumpers. He also pulled down eleven rebounds and had five assists. Bobby King, who finished with 17 points, also had 11 rebounds while Larry Miller and Leon Robinson had 13 and 19 each. That's 45 rebounds divided among four starters.

"We ran well, we shot well and we rebounded well. We had a five-man effort on the boards. (Gil Spencer the fifth starter had three.) You can't ask for much more than that," said PHS coach Marvin Trotman. For PHS, the victory was its tenth in 14 starts and third in a row.

Bailey personally wrecked the Larries (6-4) with 10 points in a row. He scored the last six points in the first half, two on long shots and one on a determined effort that included at least three shots before the ball dropped in. He opened the second half with two more baskets to push the Little Tigers' lead to 45-24. By the time Trotman had pulled all his starters with 3:35 left to go, PHS had increased its lead to 30 points, 66-36.

King scored most of his points—nine—in the first period as PHS pulled to a 23-12 lead. Although Lawrenceville had a pair of 6-3 players in Mark Campbell and Darius Preikstas, PHS owned the boards, taking two or three shots every time to one for the Larries. Only freshman guard Jim Sweeney, one of the smallest visitors on the court, had a successful day shooting. He was high for the losers with 16 points.

At one point in the second period, a swatted rebound sailed off the fingertips of a player and out an open window. "That's a first," commented Trotman as he tossed in a reserve ball until the game ball could be retrieved.
